UM BOTANY-ZOOLOGY SEMINAR
TO FEATURE SARA MCCLAIN FRIDAY

MISSOULA--

An instructor in the University of Montana Department of Speech Pathology and Audiology will be the featured speaker Friday (Jan. 28) in the weekly botany-zoology seminar series on new educational programs at UM.

The speaker, Sara C. McClain, will discuss "A Socio-Linguistic Analysis of Minorities Studies Programs" at 12:15 p.m. Friday in room 307 of the UM Natural Science Building. The lecture, which is open to the public without charge, is based partly on experiences with Indian youth and adults at the UM Speech and Hearing Clinic and on reservations.

Friday's program also will deal with the question of bilingualism and its application to the UM Black Studies and Indian Studies Programs.
